Trainings and Resources on Finance and Insurance

Introduction to this Resource

This resource is a guide to high quality trainings, worksheets, factsheets, publications, and case studies on health insurance literacy and a variety of financial topics. It is well known that finances and insurance can be confusing topics and a great source of farm stress. In acknowledgement of that relationship, this document is organized using the mental health continuum to indicate what level of stress a farm might be under when seeking each resource.

The target audiences for this guide are practitioners, service providers, farmers/clients.

The topics covered in this guide include:

- Consumer Finances
- Case Studies Learning from Others' Experiences
- Financial Terminology
- Becoming "Finance Ready": Record keeping, communicating with lenders, credit score
- Determining Appropriate Financing for Your Business
- Estate Planning Resources
- Health Insurance Literacy / Managing Disputes

Estate Planning Resources

Begin with the end in mind, often easier said than done, but preparing to transiting your land and business to the next generation is best to start considering years in advance. Especially with farmland becoming increasingly difficult to access it's important that farm businesses and land be passed on to those who will continue to farm on the land. These resources offer insight and tips into how to prepare to pass on your land - succession planning, as well as how to find farmland.
